Law firm proud to continue sponsorships in 2026 for public safety, youth programs, and health causes in Northeastern Florida

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. — Rue & Ziffra invested $87,000 in community involvement across Volusia and Flagler counties in 2025, supporting public safety efforts, youth programs, health-related causes, and major local events throughout the year.

Among the firm's key community highlights were an April RZ Cares event with the Volusia County Sheriff's Office canine unit and serving as the Official Attorneys of Biketoberfest in October. The firm was also proud to hold an RZ Cares check presentation to Foundations to Freedom in August.

The 2025 recap reflects Rue & Ziffra's continued support for organizations and events serving families, students, law enforcement, veterans, and nonprofit groups across the region. The firm has served Volusia and Flagler counties for more than 50 years, building long-standing relationships with community partners through recurring sponsorships and local involvement.

"We are proud to support the communities we serve across Volusia and Flagler counties," said Allan Ziffra, president and founding partner of Rue & Ziffra. "That commitment includes backing programs tied to youth and education, public safety, health and family support, veterans' causes, and the local events that help bring people together."

The firm has continued its community work in 2026, including its participation in the 4th Annual Saddle Up for St. Jude Poker Run on April 4. The event supported fundraising efforts for St. Jude Children's Research Hospital and its work on behalf of children facing cancer and other life-threatening illnesses.

The sponsorship recap underscores a community-giving strategy centered on local partnerships and sustained support for causes that have a direct impact in Volusia and Flagler counties. Visit Rue & Ziffra's website to learn more about their commitment to community involvement.
